Each year we tell you and tell you truthfully that we've accomplished more than in any season past. We never had better right to claim that than we have this season. Our purchases have been enormous—our buying expeditions trive been thorough. We've dug and delved, to speak metaphorically, in "every man's shop"-and every importer's warehouse. We've bought early and late-some purchases made two months ago-some made last week. We haven't missed the early things, we haven't missed the late ones. All gathered now for eight more days' selfing before the greatest anniversary in the calendar.

It's well to talk price. We can talk price with all the confidence that assurance can give. We stand on a solid basis of bedrock. The prices we are quoting profit by comparison with any in the East. We've studied your interest in studying our own. This newspaper space is used to tell of the most important leaders only. Every item in it blazes forth a call of bargains in accents no competition can contradict. Now for the biggest week's selling of the year-caused by prices that stretch the capacity of the store's facilities-prices that compel attention and tempt patronage.

Your Christmas candies should be ordered at once. We've got the best candy proposition in town-practically a half-price proposition.

Open Evenings Until Christmas. Bring the children we have a beautiful souvenir puzzle for them.

For more than half a century the famous Bradbury Pianos have been the "idols" of America's best families. They have been used in the White House since the beginning of Grant's administration—they were selected above all competition for the new Willard's Hotel-they are preferred by some of the most celebated vocal artists on account of their sweet, sympathetic tone-and they are used in every home where a quality piano is desired. Every year has marked an enormous increase in the sale of Bradbury Pianos, and the Christmas trade is exceeding all expecta-
